Garden Hints

This is the time to watch for the fles' beetle, a tiny, plump and very active little insect, which delighte to feed on young vegetable plants in the backyard garden. Apparently it has a special fondness for cucumbers, potatoes, cabbages, agg-plants and tomatoes. The June brood is followed by another in July or August. The peste are so tiny that they often escape obser-vetion at first, but their presence is soon indicated by riddled isaves.

They work so rapidly that no time should be lost in combatting them as soon as they ennear. Fortunately, they dislike leaf surfaces covered which is something to be remain-bered. Tobacco dust and lima dusted
